Greetings

Welcome to the Institute of International Research & Development (IIRD).

Since the United Nation's Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs) were formally adopted, IIRD has been committed to the SDGs as a dynamic approach to promote sustainable development, to reduce poverty and empower the people across the world. While some regions are showing positive development towards stability, other regions continue to be plagued by poverty, environmental degradation, inequality and ignorance.

In the face of these challenges, IIRD continues to apply Korea's knowledge, experience and skills in its response to the problems confronting developing countries. IIRD will forge partnerships and make its utmost efforts to address global challenges with a diverse range of actors, including various countries, local governments, universities, private companies, and other development organizations.

IIRD looks forward to your continuous support and active participation. Thank you.
